Oahu's Natural Defenses Show

HEADQUARTERS RED ARMY,
Pearl City, Oct. 26.—With the invasion of Oahu at an end, the soldiers of the Red army, who since Monday last have been forcing their way across the island in the face of a determined resistance by the Blues, have discovered that they are quite ready to go home. It will not be a case of dropping the rifles for the plow, for they are soldiers first, last and always but with the cessation of hostilities yesterday, the period of field training for the year came practically to a close. There will be no more practice marches, and no more campaigning for some time to come, and every one is looking forward to the return to hum drum garrison life.

At that, the department maneuvers just ended have been successful not only from a purely technical and strategic standpoint, but also from the personal side with both officers and men. A general vote polled by the Red army would show a large majority in favor of the week's campaign. It has been hard work, about as hard as soldiers are ever required to do in peace times, but it has been interesting work at that, and the personal spirit that indisputably sprang up as the war game progressed has kept everyone tuned to high pitch. Before the final engagement yesterday, the Reds had worked themselves up to such a pitch of enthusiasm that they almost believed themselves to be at war with the Blues. In fact as well as in fancy.

Last night's camp at Pearl City was a cherry one, for two reasons. Firstly, the men felt that they were bound for home and all that home meant after a weeks hiking over dusty roads and muddy ravines. Secondly, they came back yesterday afternoon to a ready made camp, and did not have to go through the hard work of pitching tents and unloading the wagon train.

Homeward Bound.
This morning the Red army started on the last leg of its homeward journey. Promptly at 7 o'clock the first squadron of the Fifth Cavalry, commanded by Captain Pritchard, trotted up the road that leads to the main trans-island artery, and soon afterward Batteries E and F of the First Field Artillery. Then followed the First Infantry, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Hirst, the transportation of all organizations following as one wagon train. In charge of Captain Offley, chief quartermaster of the Red army.

Naturally a week of the war game has led to many discussions as to the value of maneuvers of this sort, and the consensus of opinion is that it has been a good thing for the army of Oahu. It has given the officers both field and company, added experience in handling their commands, and has given the men a lot of practical instruction in looking after themselves in the field, and also in operating in connection with other arms of the service. As nearly as possible conditions of real warfare have been followed, and everything has been done to make the game as realistic as circumstances permitted. Fields Are Obstacles.

However, there has been one great drawback toward the successful maneuvering of two armies, and that is the amount of cultivated ground, out of which the troops have been forced to stay. This confined them to the roads, which in the face of heavy artillery fire, is the very last place that they would have been. The Schofield reservation is about the only place in which troops can be distributed as they would be in real fighting, and the engagements of Tuesday and Wednesday near the post were more like the real thing than those that followed. Thursday's pursuit of the Blues by the Reds from Schofield to Pearl City was more or less realistic, for the retreating army

Blue Army Makes An Excellent Record

BY CHARLES NORTON
[Star-Bulletin Staff Correspondent
with the Blue Army]

ENCAMPED WITH THE BLUE ARMY, PUKAKI HILL, Oct. 26.—At twelve o'clock noon, Friday, October 26th, the "war" was officially declared ended.

It is the unanimous opinion of every officer of the Blue Army that Col. Wilder handled his Division in a masterly manner. Owing to the peculiar nature of the country his work was no sinecure, and great credit is due to him. He was particularly fortunate in the selection of his staff, or perhaps it would be better to say, used good judgment in choosing them. Army Breaks Camp.

Promptly at six o'clock this morning the Artillery, Captain F. E. Hopkins, Commanding, left Fort Shafter, followed shortly after by the Cavalry. At 6:30 the Second Infantry marched from the late encampment, with the exception of the Third Battalion, which returned to Fort Shafter, where they are quartered. The troops were all in excellent spirits, and the Star-Bulletin Correspondent is "up against it" for suitable adjectives to express proper appreciation of them all, owing to the extreme poverty of the English language. Artillery (Cavalry, Infantry, Signal Service and Hospital Corps are all "stars" in their particular line. Thanks From "War Correspondents." The Star-Bulletin takes this opportunity to thank the Colonels Commanding and their officers and men for the consideration shown to its correspondents at all times. Maybe they were a pest, at times as all eagle hunters for news are apt to be, but no obstacle was put in their way throughout the entire campaign.

At the conference of the Blue officers at Fort Shafter, Friday afternoon important matters were discussed, which no doubt will have a direct bearing on future strengthening of fortifications and increase in number of troops stationed here. A prominent officer of well known military ability said that with the forces now here it would be well nigh impossible to hold in check, say, 30,000 men with good artillery.

The Chinese-J. A. C. baseball game today has been called off on account of wet grounds and will be played next Saturday.

Circuit Judge Whitney today granted divorce to Sakumitsu Sakumoto, who accused Tomo Sakumoto of desertion. The father was granted the custody of the ten-year-old child, the two other children being left to the mother. Circuit Judge Cooper yesterday returned judgment for Z. Tanaka in the replevin suit brought by him against Kihachi Oba, to recover a team of mares, a drag and two sets of harness, worth a total of $350.

TAX RETURNS TO BE OPEN TO PUBLIC

Territorial Treasurer D. L. Conkling has promulgated a new tax office feature, today issuing an order to assessors on the Islands that hereafter all valuations of property returned to the assessors by the owners shall be open to public inspection at all times.

It has been found that there is no law providing either for or against this kind of publicity, and the Treasurer, while not hinting that any property owners might return lower valuations than their holdings should warrant, is inclined to believe that the publicity of their figures may have a salutary effect and prevent possible errors from creeping into the records.

It has been customary heretofore to make public the assessment figures on properties, but these were the figures finally accepted by the assessor. The original returns, made by the owners, has been held inviolate—not that there was any law or rhyme or reason for it, but just because it "happened that way" in the beginning.

MYSTERIOUS GIFT OF $10,000 TO LEAHI HOME

Another mysterious philanthropic gift of $10,000 has been received, and this time by the Leahi Home at Kaimuki. This is the second instance during the last month that some unknown philanthropist has donated a sum of this amount to charitable institutions of the city, the first gift being received by the King's Daughters. Nothing could be learned today of the circumstances surrounding the gift to Leahi Home.

HILO, T. H., October 26.—The Republican mass meeting held last night in the national guard armory here is declared to have been the largest ever held in Hilo. People from outside districts came in by the train-load. Kuhio, who has recovered his health sufficiently to speak, made an address, receiving a great ovation.

R. W. Shingle, chairman of the Republican Territorial Central Committee, and W. T. Rawlins, who came to fill the dates that Kuhio could not, also spoke, while Beckley and Fernandez, candidates for the senate, and John Ross, running for supervisor were on the program, too.

Indications are that Kuhio will sweep Hawaii by a greater majority than two years ago.

[Special Star-Bulletin Aerogram]

HILO, October 26.—Delegate Kuhio has recovered from his attack of dengue fever, enough to be able to start today on his campaign tour through Kona and Kau, returning to Honolulu on the Maunaloa next Tuesday.

In his address at the big armory meeting last night, he said that Secretary Fisher had agreed that the trouble in Hawaii has been in the administration of the land laws, that not enough land has been given to home steads. He said that at least fifty acres should be given.

Kuhio declared that he has not been and is not opposing the sugar interests except where they hurt the small men. He told the crowd that he is paying his own traveling expenses, that the sugar interests are not putting up for him.

BOTH PARTIES GO CAMPAIGNING DOWN THE ISLAND

With song and feasting the Republicans will carry the county campaign down the island today, marching on Laie and Waianae afterwards and spreading the G. O. P. gospel of prosperity as they go.

Early this morning some of the candidates left for Laie, but the majority go down this afternoon on the 3:15 train. Going through Waialua the train will pick up extra cars filled with loyal Republican voters and Democrats who it is hoped will become Republicans. The train will go to Laie and the Koolau and Kahuku trains will bring in the voters from their respective territories. Many autos are also making the trip. At Laie tonight there will be a big rally, with music, moving pictures and a great luau, and then the visiting campaigner will return to the Haleiwa hotel for the night. Tomorrow morning a special train will run from Waialua to Waianae and there will be a luau at the latter place from 12 to 1 o'clock. The Honolulu folks will take the regular evening train back to the city.

The Democrats go down this afternoon for a meeting at Waianae, the following notice being given:

Democratic campaign meeting for Saturday, October 26, 1912, Waianae. All the senatorial ticket, supervisors, candidates that are running at large including the representatives of the Fifth district headed by L. L. McCandless. No meeting in town tonight.

LAST DAY TO FILE NOMINATION PAPERS

The period for filing nominations of candidates on Oahu with the Territorial Secretary ends at midnight tonight, after which all ballots for the Territory will be prepared. So far as known all candidates had filed their nomination papers at noon today except two. Home Rule senatorial nominees and four Home Rule representative nominees. These probably will be on record in Mott-Smith's office before the closing hour.

DROUGHT ON OAHU BROKEN EFFECTUALLY; RAIN HEAVY

Waialua and Oahu Plantations
Report Plenty of Water
At Last

For Waialua plantation the prolonged drought has been effectually broken. Manager Goodale telephoned in this morning that the Waialua reservoir had risen ten feet, bringing the depth of water up to about thirty feet. Montague Lord, luna on the plantation, is in town and confirms the good news with further information. He says the additional ten feet all came in within six hours. It began raining heavily at midnight, making the streams run torrents. Up to now, since the rainy season started, water gulches are running flooded and all the ditches are filling up. It is still raining in the mountains.

to be drawn off as fast as it came to replenish the field ditches. Oahu plantation has also been relieved of the long dry siege. Although the rainfall at Waipahu has only been in fractions of an inch since the showers began, there has been heavier rains in the mountains. For the twenty-four hours ended at daylight this morning the precipitation at the mill was 33-tenths of an inch, but the gulches are all running full. Eugene M. Scoville, engineer of Waipahu, who was in town this morning said to a Star-Bulletin reporter: "It rained steadily all night, and the average fall over the whole plantation was about 35-tenths of an inch. Water is coming down from the mountains in floods. Kapepe and Waialua gulches are running flooded and all the ditches are filling up. It is still raining in the mountains."
